CORE-501-01 55002	War/Peace Along Sprtual Prspct Steven C. Carreker CORE 501-01 When a nation wages war, change happens all around us and something shifts within us. Crisis and change often approach peak during war. People turn inward, become reflective, ask difficult questions about matters over which they have little or no control, or to the opposite extreme, act with little thought given as to why. War uncovers deeply felt passions within us and leads us to deepest levels of awareness and abiding. Is peace merely a reaction to war or an opposite of war? Or, can peace be a state of being in war and during crisis and change? This course is designed to offer the professional time to read, question, dialogue and to reflect about war and peace alongside spiritual perspectives. The professional who attempts to be present to war-born crisis and change in their own life and in the lives of students and clients is invited to bring their honesty and struggle to this endeavor. CORE 501-01 meets 5:30p-7:30p T 3/3, 9a-5:30p S 3/7, and 9a-1:30p SU 3/8/09. Students: Please be advised that class assignments, required readings, and course changes will be sent to you via e-mail. Drawing from multidisciplinary and culturally diverse sources, students will look deeply at how the contemplative/mindfulness process and shared meaning can nurture power within and through, at their teaching and/or counseling practice. Combining reflection, readings, journaling, dialogue, and hands-on learning activities, students will be introduced to historical and contemporary overviews of contemplative philosophy and practice. Embracing the paradox of co-existing truths, we will consider this issue from multiple perspectives ranging from quantum physics to Buddhist philosophy to recent findings in neuroscience. This course also incorporates readings from "The Impossible Will Take a Little While."

CORE 501-04 meets 9a-5:30p S 1/17 and 1/24/09.

Students: Please be advised that class assignments, required readings, and course changes will be sent to you via e-mail. Please check your Lewis & Clark e-mail regularly for information.

CORE-501-05 55007	Communicating With Compassion Carol Placer Please be advised that class assignments, required readings, and course changes will be sent to you via email. Please check your Lewis & Clark email regularly for information. Communicating With Compassion - As the world becomes increasingly complex and fragmented, and the signs of escalating conflicts are everywhere we look, the process of speaking and listening with a clear intention to connect, offers us a pathway back to a more peaceful world. Utilizing the tools of Nonviolent Communication (NVC), as articulated by Marshall Rosenberg and others, we will learn how to develop a deeper, more authentic connection with ourselves and with everyone we relate to, including clients, students, administrators, partners, friends, and family. Upon learning these skills and practicing them with your peers, you will feel confident entering into difficult discussions, knowing that it is possible to arrive in a place where everyone's needs can be supported. You will be able to model a way of resolving conflicts that will demonstrate a powerful alternative to the judging, blaming, competitive discourse that surrounds us. Through assigned readings,videos, and classroom discussion, you will be invited to consider how you	LEC LEC LEC	ROG 219 ROG 219 ROG 219	F S SU	05:30PM 07:30PM 09:00AM 05:00PM 09:00AM 03:00PM	03/13/09 03/13/09 03/14/09 03/14/09 03/15/09 03/15/09	Dail Dail Dail	1.00

CORE-501-W03 55004	Bearing Witness Dr. Joanne B. Mulcahy CORE 501-W03 What is the writer's role in bearing witness? How do we observe, record, and interpret events from the everyday to the unspeakable? In this nonfiction workshop, we'll explore a continuum of creative nonfiction including literary journalism, essay, and memoir. We'll write from our own observations of cultural life, exploring ethical issues as well as style, voice, and literary form. Participants will generate and revise material in the workshop; writers of all levels are welcome. CORE 501-W03 is crosslisted with CEED 804-W03. CPSY-590-02 42058	Spirituality and Counseling Dr. Gordon Lindbloom Lauren M. Loos We will explore the ways we humans find and cultivate meaning and value in our lives based in our sense of what is most real and sacred. And we will examine ways in which each individual146s orientation to meaning/spirituality may influence her/his search for hope and healing. This will include the negative and harmful elements we so often encounter as well as the positive. Counselors can use respectful approaches to help clients understand and address critical issues that involve their most basic values and beliefs, and can help them draw on their inner and outer spiritual resources to find hope and healing. This class will emphasize reading, reflection, dialogue, experiential learning, and case-based applications. Personal exploration and reflection will be important at every stage, and will be balanced with reaching out to explore the differing experiences of others. As now planned the first class and every other week after will focus on dialogue around the results of our reading and reflections. The in-between-week class sessions will be devoted to experiential exploration of spiritual practices that are common across many faith communities, and that can	LEC	ROG 105	F	02:00PM 05:00PM	01/16/09 03/20/09	Week	2.00

CPSY-590-03 42063	Eco-Therapy Thomas Doherty Patricia Hasbach This course will provide resources and techniques for mental health providers to utilize nature activities and metaphors in their therapeutic work, address environmental concerns they may encounter during the course of counseling, and harness individuals146 sustainability values to foster therapeutic goals. We will review research and practices in ecopsychology, conservation psychology, and environmental psychology and explore topics such as environmental identity, grief and despair about environmental issues, restorative natural settings, green spaces and children, and the adoption of sustainable living practices. CPSY-590-04 42068	Adolescence Dr. Suzanne L. Younge This seminar emphasizes an in-depth understanding of adolescent development, including a focus on multicultural and family factors. Students will use new information to examine their own data-bases and perhaps biases which they have gained while working with teenagers. This new information will be helpful to refine and broaden their approaches to counseling teens. There will be a strong experiential base to this course. Prior experience with adolescents is desirable but not required of the students. This exploration will include among other areas the following topics: research on neurobiology and brain function, resiliency, youth violence, and alcohol and drug use. Prevention and treatment approaches such as mental health models in the schools, motivational interviewing and the trans-theoretical model of change will be investigated. Tips for addressing parental concerns and helping parents of teenagers bridge the gap between generations will be provided. Counselors will develop a systemic approach to thinking about, planning for and treating adolescents both individually and in a cultural, familial and community context. CEED-866-06 68020	Exploring Web 2.0 Tools Clssrm Dr. Michael D. Krauss I cannot do yet in order to learn how to do it." Using free Web 2.0 tools, collaborate online with an international group of teachers in order to learn how to exploit social multimedia Web resources for classroom teaching and professional development. This class is designed for all educators who want to move beyond using the Internet solely for information dissemination. Learn to use the Web in educational settings as students are already doing in their wider world, this includes blogs, wikis, podcasts, audio and videoconferencing, social bookmarking, image enhancement and news aggregators. Text-based articles, audio and video resources will guide teachers in pedagogical best practices as Web 2.0 resources are explored. The broader content overlay for the course will be human rights, a topic that will facilitate intercultural exchange among international participants and lead to creation of student projects with a real world impact. Teachers must have a reliable Internet connection and access email on a regular basis. Teachers should have basic Internet browsing and search skills. CEED 866-06 class fee $250. CEED 866-06 is crosslisted with ED 689-06. CEED 866-06 is an online course.	LEC	OL	ON-LINE		03/02/09 03/20/09	Week	2.00

ED-689-06 66042	Exploring Web 2.0 Tools Clssrm Dr. Michael D. Krauss I cannot do yet in order to learn how to do it." Using free Web 2.0 tools, collaborate online with an international group of teachers in order to learn how to exploit social multimedia Web resources for classroom teaching and professional development. This class is designed for all educators who want to move beyond using the Internet solely for information dissemination. Learn to use the Web in educational settings as students are already doing in their wider world, this includes blogs, wikis, podcasts, audio and videoconferencing, social bookmarking, image enhancement and news aggregators. Text-based articles, audio and video resources will guide teachers in pedagogical best practices as Web 2.0 resources are explored. The broader content overlay for the course will be human rights, a topic that will facilitate intercultural exchange among international participants and lead to creation of student projects with a real world impact. Teachers must have a reliable Internet connection and access email on a regular basis. Teachers should have basic Internet browsing and search skills. ED 689-06 class fee $250. ED 689-06 is an online course. ED 689-06 is crosslisted with CEED 866-06.	LEC	OL	ON-LINE		03/02/09 03/20/09	Week	2.00
