Lewis & Clark Law School

Financial Aid 2011–2012

Welcome

Lewis & Clark is committed to offering exceptional educational opportunities in an engaging, active, and supportive environment. We firmly believe this type of education is profoundly valuable not only to you as an individual, but to the broader community as well. We are keenly aware, however, that such an education requires a significant financial investment and want you to know that we are committed to working in partnership with students to identify financial options and strategies that will make a law degree from Lewis & Clark an attainable goal.

Important information about your financial aid award can be found in this guide as well as on our website. In addition to learning how we determined your eligibility for financial assistance, you will find what steps you need to take next to process the aid you have been offered and how that aid will be disbursed to you. You'll want to keep this guide and bookmark our website. We have designed this guide as well as the information on our website based on the questions many students have asked over the years, so you'll find the answers to many of your questions right at your fingertips or just a click away on our website.

Rest assured that the Student Financial Services staff is ready and willing to help you through the financial aid process, whether you are just starting your Lewis & Clark experience, are nearing the completion of your degree, or are in the middle of your journey.

Determining Eligibility

The primary purpose of financial aid is to provide resources for students who demonstrate financial need. The formula for determining financial need is simple:

Cost of Attendance
– Expected Family Contribution
Demonstrated Financial Need

Cost of Attendance

Each year Lewis & Clark estimates the typical cost associated with enrollment. Our calculations take into consideration:

- Tuition & Fees
- Living Expenses
- Books & Supplies
- Transportation
- Personal Expenses

The sum of these typical expenses is called the cost of attendance and is used in the formula listed above. The cost of attendance used to determine your financial aid award is listed on the bottom section of your financial aid notification letter. It is important to realize that the figures used in determining the cost of attendance are estimates which reflect the typical costs most students have during a year at Lewis & Clark.

For more information about how we determine your eligibility for financial aid, go to www.lclark.edu/offices/student_financial_services/

Expected Family Contribution

The Expected Family Contribution figure is calculated from information you provide on the financial aid applications you submit. The expected family contribution for Law students is based on the information provided on the FAFSA. It is important to note that the Expected Family Contribution is primarily a tool to assess aid eligibility and is not necessarily the amount you will pay for a year in college.

Demonstrated Financial Need

In working to meet the student's demonstrated financial need, we take into consideration all financial aid – including merit-based aid. Students who do not demonstrate financial need or those who receive merit-based awards in excess of their demonstrated financial need are not eligible for funding from need-based programs.

General Eligibility Information

To receive financial assistance from Lewis & Clark, an individual must be admitted as a degree-seeking student to a College program. In addition, students must meet the following criteria in order to receive federal financial aid:

Determining Eligibility

- Be a U.S. citizen or eligible non-resident
- Make satisfactory academic progress toward a degree
- Enroll at least half-time each semester
- Not be in default on any prior federal student loan
- Not owe an overpayment on a federal grant or loan program

Statement of Rights and Responsibilities

Financial aid recipients have the right to know the following:

- What financial aid programs are available to Lewis & Clark students and the priority application deadlines to be considered for this assistance.
- The method used to determine financial need.
- The appeal procedure regarding financial aid issues.
- How and when financial aid will be disbursed.
- How Lewis & Clark determines a student is making satisfactory academic progress for the purpose of remaining eligible to receive financial aid and what happens if standards are not met.
- How the student employment program is administered at Lewis & Clark including how and when the student will be paid.
- What portion of the financial aid offered is in the form of loan(s) and must be repaid.
- Borrowers have the right to know the interest rate, the total amount that must be repaid, the repayment procedures as well as the length of the repayment period and when it begins.
- The policies for refund of charges and return of financial aid funds in the case of complete withdrawal from the College.
- The College reserves the right to adjust financial aid awards if federal and/or state funding for aid programs falls short of anticipated levels.

Financial aid recipients have the following responsibilities:

- Maintain at least half-time student status.
- Remain in Good Academic Standing as described in the College catalog and monitored by the Registrar.
- Make satisfactory academic progress toward a law degree as defined in the satisfactory academic progress policy for financial aid.
- Notify Student Financial Services immediately of receipt of other assistance including external resources and other educational benefits for the academic year. Such assistance must be taken into consideration in determining eligibility for federal loan and work programs.
- Notify Student Financial Services of changes in marital or enrollment status which may result in a revision to eligibility for financial aid.
- Provide documents upon request to validate the information provided on the financial aid application. This is commonly referred to as "verification"

Statement of Rights and Responsibilities

and provides confirmation that a student's eligibility for financial aid is being determined using accurate information.

- Secure a job and work the number of hours necessary to earn the amount of Federal Work-Study (FWS) offered if so desired. An offer of FWS is not a guarantee of employment.
- Complete the process for securing any loan funds offered if it is determined that the funds are needed. Repay loan funds received in accordance with the terms of the respective loan program.
- Pay, on time, all college charges not covered by financial aid.
- Reapply for financial aid each year by the priority filing date of March 1.

Verification

Students may be asked to provide documentation to validate information provided on the aid application through a process called verification. Students who are selected must complete the verification process to confirm their eligibility for aid. The College may require verification to resolve discrepant information provided in the process of applying for aid or prior to consideration of special circumstances. Students who are selected for verification must submit signed copies of student and/or spouse's federal tax returns, W-2 forms, and a completed verification worksheet directly to the Office of Student Financial Services. The verification worksheet is available at the department website www.lclark.edu/offices/student_financial_services/forms/ under the "Forms" link. Students are encouraged to respond to any request for verification documents promptly. Failure to supply the requested forms in a timely manner will significantly delay the processing of financial aid and can result in the cancellation of aid.

Revisions

Should the information used to determine eligibility for financial aid change, a revision to the financial aid award may be necessary. A revised award notification, which supersedes any previous award notification received by the student, will then be issued. Carefully review any revised award notification to determine if additional action is necessary to secure funding. Changes in awards are subject to availability of funding. Please note that financial aid revisions can occur any time new information is provided to Student Financial Services, even after funds have been disbursed. Examples of situations that may prompt a financial aid award revision and should promptly be reported to Student Financial Services are:

Change in Enrollment Status - If a student changes divisions (Full-time/Part-time) or drops below half-time enrollment, eligibility for aid will be reviewed. A change in cost associated with a change in division enrollment will require a revised financial aid award. Students must be enrolled at least half-time to be considered for Federal Direct, Federal Perkins and Federal Direct Graduate PLUS Loan funds.

Revisions

Receipt of Additional Assistance including External Resources - Aid received from sources inside or outside Lewis & Clark such as scholarships, loans, tuition waivers, or educational benefits can impact a student's eligibility for other aid programs. In most cases, receipt of such additional assistance will reduce a student's Federal Direct Graduate PLUS loan eligibility. However, in some cases, the College will be required to reduce the amount of need-based federal aid offered so the total aid does not exceed the demonstrated financial need. In this situation, the College will reduce the need-based federal aid offered by the amount of the external resources(s) in the following order: Federal Perkins Loan, Federal Direct subsidized loan, and Federal Work-Study

Verification Changes - The College is required to make corrections to inaccurate information discovered through the verification process and to use the verified information in determining a student's eligibility for financial aid. Significant corrections to a student's original information may cause a change in eligibility and result in a revised award notification.

Student Financial Changes – If a student updates or corrects information provided on the FAFSA, it is possible that a financial aid award revision will be necessary. Students may also request that family emergencies such as involuntary job loss be reviewed to determine if a financial aid award can be revised.

Renewal of Financial Aid

Financial aid is awarded on an annual basis. Students must reapply for assistance in the upcoming academic year and are encouraged to complete the application process no later than March 1 for priority consideration. At Lewis & Clark, summer is the first semester of the new academic year for financial aid purposes. Continuing students who wish to be considered for need-based financial aid and/or federal student loans must file a FAFSA with the U.S. Department of Education at www.fafsa.gov. Students receiving merit-based scholarships should take note of cumulative grade point average (GPA) requirements for renewal of funds.

Student Account Information

Estimating Costs

Please use the worksheet titled "Estimating College Costs" on-line at www.lclark.edu/offices/student_financial_services/forms/ to determine the amount of the educational expenses to be paid by the student or the expected credit balance to help with living expenses and/or books. Simply subtract anticipated financial aid from estimated direct costs to determine the balance due or anticipated credit balance. Federal Work-Study is disbursed directly to the student in the form of a paycheck based on the number of hours worked each month and should not be considered anticipated financial aid when settling the student account.

For further information regarding account statements, payment plans, and what it means to settle a student account, please visit the Student and Departmental Account Services website (www.lclark.edu/offices/account_services/).

Student Account and Billing Statement

Student and Departmental Account Services produces statements itemizing the activity on student accounts. Fall semester statements are available in July and spring semester statements are available in November. By each semester's due date, student accounts should be settled and the account balance brought to zero by making the appropriate payments and/or fully processing sufficient financial aid funds.

To assist students in meeting their portion of the educational costs, Lewis & Clark partners with Tuition Management Systems (TMS) to offer a monthly payment plan. This plan is designed to divide the cost the fall and spring semesters into 10 interest-free installments. There is no monthly payment plan for summer expenses.

Note:* Summer Semester financial aid cannot be posted to student accounts prior to June 1st. Therefore, financial aid refunds will not be released until the Friday following June 1. Please plan accordingly.

Disbursing Financial Aid

Financial aid will be applied to student accounts and used to address charges incurred, such as tuition and fees. Financial aid funds cannot be applied until the appropriate paperwork has been completed and the funds are received.

Credit Balance Refunds

Aid applied to a student account which exceeds the amount a student has been charged may be refunded to the student. Refunds will be processed after the first day of classes in each term and only when a credit balance actually exists on a student account. Refunds must be used to cover education-related expenses such as off-campus living expenses, transportation and/or books and supplies.

For more information regarding credit balances go.lclark.edu/refunds

Note: Please be aware the school may not apply federal student aid funds toward fines and miscellaneous fees assessed to student accounts without the student's written authorization. For this reason, even after you receive a credit balance refund of federal student aid funds, you may still have outstanding charges on your student account.

Satisfactory Academic Progress Policy

Students are required to maintain satisfactory academic progress and remain in good academic standing to retain eligibility for federal and institutional financial assistance. Students are required to maintain a minimum cumulative GPA of 2.0. Full-time students are required to advance through the program at a rate which will allow completion of the degree requirements within five (5) years. Compliance with this policy will be monitored annually. Students who have not met the Satisfactory Academic Progress requirements will be invited to submit a petition letter requesting reinstatement of their financial aid eligibility. The petition letter should explain the reasons for failing to meet the criteria as well as the steps the student has taken or will take to meet the terms of the Satisfactory Academic Progress policy. Based on a review of the petition letter, a student may be offered a probationary period of financial aid eligibility. If a student has been granted a probationary period of aid eligibility and does not meet the standards required by the end of the probationary period, the student will be ineligible for further federal or institutional financial aid until he or she meets the terms of the Satisfactory Academic Progress policy.

Withdrawal Policy

Registered students who completely withdraw from all classes after the start of the semester may be eligible for a recalculation of College charges in accordance with College policy. Students must initiate formal withdrawal in the Law Registrar's Office in order for this refund calculation to occur. Please refer to the College catalog for specific information regarding withdrawal policies and procedures. Separate calculations will be done to determine how much institutional and federal aid a student is eligible to retain in light of the withdrawal. Please contact Student Financial Services for additional information on the impact withdrawing from the College will have on financial aid eligibility.

Note: Please refer to the Student Financial Services website (www.lclark.edu/offices/student_financial_services/) for important information on financial aid policies including:

- Where to get important information
- Release of information in your financial aid records

Tuition Remission

Tuition Remission is a benefit of employment extended to eligible Lewis & Clark employees, their dependents and spouses. Application for this benefit is made through the Office of the Provost. The amount of Tuition Remission a student will receive in a given academic year must be taken into consideration when determining a student's eligibility for federal and state aid programs.

External Resources

External Resources are funds awarded by an organization other than Lewis & Clark and include scholarships awarded by schools, religious, civic, or other organizations; state and federally funded scholarships or grants not listed in this guide, or tuition benefits received from an employer. Students must notify Student Financial Services of any external resource(s) they will receive in a given academic year regardless of the amount using the 2011-12 External Resources form found on the web site under the "Forms" link.

Inform donors to send scholarship payments directly to Student Financial Services. It is College policy to divide scholarship funds equally between the fall and spring semesters. Scholarship donors may request a different distribution of the student's funds by providing written instructions to Student Financial Services with the scholarship payment.

In most cases, receipt of external funding will result in a dollar-for-dollar decrease in the student's Federal Direct Graduate PLUS or private loan eligibility. However, in some cases, revisions will include reductions in need-based federal loans. College scholarships will be reduced only if the total amount of external resource(s) and College aid exceeds the total cost of attendance budget used to determine eligibility for financial aid.

Taxability of Scholarships and Grants

Scholarships and grants received in a calendar year in excess of tuition and books/supplies for that calendar year are subject to federal income tax. The College is not responsible for notifying students of the taxable amounts of grants and scholarships. Student Financial Services cannot serve as a tax consultant or adviser. Detailed information concerning the taxability of scholarships and grants can be found in IRS Publication 970 Tax Benefits for Education, on www.irs.gov, or by consulting a personal tax adviser.

Work Opportunities

Many second and third year Lewis & Clark Law students find working part-time while enrolled to be a beneficial and rewarding aspect of their Law School experience. Career Services at the Law School provides resources to help students locate job opportunities in the legal field. To work in some off campus legal agencies, students must have a Federal Work-Study award.

Federal Work-Study (FWS)

The Federal Work-Study (FWS) program provides employment opportunities for students who demonstrate financial need.

An award of FWS is not a guarantee of employment but merely indicates eligibility to work under the particular program. Student earnings from FWS are disbursed in the form of a paycheck directly to the student based on the number of hours worked each month.

Note: The amount of FWS funds a student is eligible to earn in an academic year is noted in a paragraph on the lower portion of the financial aid award notification. A student's gross earnings may not exceed the awarded amount. It is the student's and supervisor's responsibility to track earnings under this program. Earnings under the FWS program are taxable as wages and must be reported to the IRS if a student is required to file a tax return. Students may not work more than 20 hours per week while classes are in session and may not work more than 40 hours a week when classes are not in session.

Required Documentation

As with any job, students must complete certain federally-required employment forms to document they are eligible to work in the United States. Completion of the I-9 Employment Eligibility Form is required before beginning initial employment at the college and the W-4 Withholding Form is recommended to ensure proper tax withholding. Both forms are completed at either Law Business Services or in Human Resources with the Student Employment Coordinator.

To complete the I-9 form, students need to show certain original documents to Human Resources or Law Business Services staff who will complete the form. As an example, students may complete an I-9 form by showing a United States Passport OR a driver's license AND original Social Security Card. Faxed or copied documents cannot be accepted. The I-9 form can be found at the Human Resources website: www.lclark.edu/human_resources/forms.

Payment of Student Earnings

Student employees, in conjunction with their supervisors, submit timesheets on or before the last working day of each month. Paychecks are generated based on the number of hours a student works during each pay period and therefore vary from month to month. Payday is the 10th of the next month. Students are encouraged to have monthly paychecks deposited directly into a personal bank account. Paychecks for students who do not elect to use direct deposit are held for a short time at the Student and Departmental Accounts Services Office and then mailed to the permanent address.

Work Opportunities

To complete the I-9, you will need to bring original documents with you to show you are eligible to work in the United States. Most students bring in one of the following combinations of identification:

A passport
or
A driver's license and original Social Security Card
(not a copy)
or
A driver's license and an original State or County issued birth certificate
(not a copy)

A complete list of acceptable documents can be found on our website:
http://www.lclark.edu/livewhale/download/?id=2239

Students wishing to work on or off campus in any capacity while enrolled should bring to campus with them the original documents required to confirm eligibility to work in the U.S.

Loan Programs

Federal Perkins Loan

- Fixed 5% interest rate loan for students demonstrating exceptional financial need.
- Priority is given to students who file a valid FAFSA prior to March 1.
- No loan fees are charged and no interest accrues on the principal while students are enrolled at least half time.
- Repayment begins nine months after a borrower graduates or drops below half-time attendance.
- Amount based on demonstrated financial need and availability of funding.
- Students must complete a promissory note and supplemental application materials to secure this funding.

Note: Students who decline the Federal Perkins Loan or fail to complete the necessary paperwork to secure these funds within a reasonable time frame will have their Federal Perkins Loan canceled and will not be able to request reinstatement of these funds at a later date.

To Process and Secure Funding:
Go to www.lclark.edu/offices/student_financial_services/. Click on "Law Students, " then "Securing Your Aid" and follow instructions.

William D. Ford Federal Direct Loan Program

- Federal Direct Loans are available regardless of demonstrated financial need.
- Repayment begins six months after a borrower graduates or drops below half-time enrollment.
- Standard repayment period is ten years, although extended repayment options are available.
- Federal Direct Loans borrowed for a two-semester academic year must be disbursed in two equal disbursements. The first half will be disbursed to the school at the beginning of the fall semester and the second half will be disbursed at the beginning of the spring semester.
- Loan origination and interest rebate are calculated on a percentage of gross loan amount. Every loan disbursement will be reduced by the net loan fee. Please be aware of loan fees when completing the "Estimated College Costs" worksheet.

Net effect on disbursement as follows:

- 1.0%	Loan Origination Fee
+ .5%	Interest Rebate
.5%	Net Loan Fee

- Direct subsidized loans are awarded to students who demonstrate financial need. No interest is charged while a student is in school at least half-time, during the grace period and during deferment periods. Direct subsidized loans for graduate students have a fixed interest rate of 6.8%.

Loan Programs

- Direct unsubsidized loans are awarded to students who do not demonstrate financial need or are receiving assistance through other sources to meet their demonstrated financial need. The borrower is responsible for the interest that begins accruing on the Direct unsubsidized loan as soon as it is disbursed. Interest may be paid during periods of enrollment or deferred until the borrower enters repayment. At repayment, accrued interest will be capitalized and added to the principal amount of the loan so that interest will accrue on an increased principal amount during repayment. Direct unsubsidized loans have a fixed interest rate of 6.8%.
- Graduate-level students may borrow up to $20,500 per two-semester academic year through the Federal Direct Loan Program. Up to $8500 of this amount per year may be in the subsidized loan program.

Federal Direct PLUS Loan for Graduate Students

- The Federal Direct Graduate PLUS Loan program allows creditworthy students to borrow the difference between the cost of attendance and the financial assistance that the student will receive.
- Interest rate on Federal Direct Graduate PLUS Loans borrowed on or after July 1, 2006 is fixed at 7.9%.
- Loan origination and interest rebate are calculated on a percentage of gross loan amount. Every loan disbursement will be reduced by the net loan fee. Please be aware of loan fees when completing the "Estimated College Costs" worksheet.

Net effect on disbursement as follows:

- 4.0%	Loan Origination Fee
+1.5%	Interest Rebate
2.5%	Net Loan Fee

Note: There is no grace period for this loan. Borrowers may need to request an in-school deferment so payments are not required while in school. Borrowers may also need to request a deferment or forbearance for a period of time after graduation if they are not able to immediately begin repayment on their loan. This loan is more expensive than the other federal loans. Students should access the full amount of their Federal Direct Subsidized and Unsubsidized Loans before borrowing this loan.

Important information about Federal Direct Loans:

For 2011-2012, all first time borrowers will be required to complete a Federal Direct Loan Master Promissory Note and Entrance Counseling to receive Federal Direct Loan funding.

To Process and Secure Funding:
Go to www.lclark.edu/offices/student_financial_services/. Click on "Law Students, " then "Securing Your Aid" and follow instructions.

To Process and Secure Funding:
Go to www.lclark.edu/offices/student_financial_services/. Click on Loan Information and Processing then Private Loans and follow the instructions.

Private Education Loan

- Private education loans can be used to cover educational expenses not already covered by federal student loans or any other source of aid.
- Approval is based on an individual's creditworthiness.
- Students who do not meet a lender's credit qualifications may apply with a creditworthy co-signer.
- Interest rates, grace periods, repayment options and fees vary considerably from lender to lender.
- Students are encouraged to maximize borrowing under federal education loan programs before pursuing private education loan funding.
