What is Income-Based Repayment?

Income-Based Repayment (IBR) is a repayment plan for the major types of federal loans that caps your required monthly payment at an amount intended to be affordable based on your income and family size.

What federal student loans are eligible to be repaid under an IBR plan?

Any Stafford, Grad PLUS or Consolidation loan made under either the Direct Loan or FFEL program is eligible for repayment under IBR, EXCEPT loans that are currently in default, parent PLUS Loans, or consolidation loans that repaid a parent PLUS Loan. The loans can be new or old, and for any type of education (undergraduate, graduate, professional, job training).

Who is eligible for IBR?

You may enter IBR if your federal student loan debt is high relative to your income and family size. While your lender will perform the calculation to determine your eligibility, you can use the Department's IBR calculator to estimate if you would likely benefit from the IBR plan. It looks at your income, family size, and state of residence to calculate your IBR monthly payment amount. If that amount is lower than the monthly payment you would be required to pay on your eligible loans under a 10-year standard repayment plan, based on the greater of the amount you owed on your loans when they initially entered repayment or the amount you owe at the time you request IBR, then you are eligible to repay your loans under IBR.

What are the benefits of IBR?

- PAY AS YOU EARN - Under IBR, your monthly payment amount will be less than the amount you would be required to pay under a 10-year standard repayment plan, and may be less than under other repayment plans. Although lower monthly payments may be of great benefit to a borrower, these lower payments may result in a longer repayment period and additional interest.
- INTEREST PAYMENT BENEFIT - If your monthly IBR payment does not cover the monthly interest that accrues on the loans, the government will pay your unpaid interest on Subsidized Stafford Loans (either Direct Loan or FFEL) for up to three consecutive years from when you first enter IBR repayment. After three years, and for all the other types of loans, interest that accrues will be capitalized (added to the loan principal on which future interest is calculated) when the borrower no longer is eligible for an IBR repayment amount.
- 25-YEAR CANCELLATION - If you repay under the IBR plan for 25 years and meet certain other requirements, any remaining balance will be cancelled.
- 10-YEAR PUBLIC SERVICE LOAN FORGIVENESS - If you work in public service and have reduced loan payments through IBR, your remaining balance after ten years in a public service job could be cancelled if you made loan payments for each month of those ten years. The Public Service Loan Forgiveness Program is available only if you have Direct Loans and you make 120 monthly payments under the Direct Loan Program. If you have FFEL loans, you may be eligible to consolidate them into the Direct Loan Program to take advantage of the Public Service Loan Forgiveness Program. However, only the payments made while in the Direct Loan Program will count toward the required 120 monthly payments. For more information about this program, review the Department's Public Service Loan Forgiveness Program Fact Sheet.

What are the disadvantages of IBR?

- YOU MAY PAY MORE INTEREST - The faster you repay your loans, the less interest you pay. Because a reduced payment in IBR generally extends your repayment period, you may pay more total interest over the life of the loan.
- YOU MUST SUBMIT ANNUAL DOCUMENTATION - To set your payment amount each year, your lender needs updated information about your income and family size. If you do not provide the documentation, your payment reverts to the standard 10-year repayment amount.

How is the IBR amount determined?

Under IBR, the amount an eligible borrower would repay each month is based on the borrower's Adjusted Gross Income (AGI) and family size. The annual IBR repayment amount is 15 percent of the difference between the borrower's AGI and 150 percent of the Department of Health and Human Services Poverty Guidelines, adjusted for family size. That amount is then divided by 12 to get the monthly IBR payment amount.

The following chart shows the maximum IBR monthly payment amounts for a sample range of incomes and family sizes using the Poverty Guidelines that were in effect as of July 1, 2010.

| $$ 65,000$ | $$ 609$ | $$ 539$ | $$ 469$ | $$ 399$ | $$ 329$ | $$ 259$ | $$ 189$ |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |
| $$ 70,000$ | $$ 672$ | $$ 602$ | $$ 532$ | $$ 462$ | $$ 391$ | $$ 321$ | $$ 251$ |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |

After the initial determination of your eligibility for IBR, your payment may be adjusted each year based on your income and family size, but your required payment will never be more than the standard 10-year payment amount (unless you choose to exit the IBR program).

Are there examples of borrowers who are eligible for IBR and of borrowers who are not

Example 1 - Based upon the IBR repayment formula a borrower with a family size of one and an AGI of $$ 30,000$ would have an IBR calculated payment amount of $$ 172$ per month. If this borrower had total eligible student loan debt of $$ 25,000$ when the loans initially entered repayment, and the loan balance had increased to $$ 30,000$ when the borrower requested IBR, the calculated monthly repayment amount under a 10-year standard plan would be based on the higher of the two amounts. Using an interest rate of 6.8 percent, the 10-year standard payment amount for $$ 30,000$ would be $$ 345$. Since the $$ 172$ IBR calculated amount is less than the 10 -year plan amount of $$ 345$, the borrower would be eligible to repay under IBR at a monthly amount of $$ 172$. However, if this borrower's total eligible loan debt used to calculate the 10 -year standard amount was only $$ 10,000$ the 10 -year standard payment would be $$ 115$ per month, which is less than the IBR amount of $$ 172$. Thus, the borrower would not be eligible for IBR.

Example 2 - A borrower with a family size of four and income of $$ 50,000$ would have an IBR calculated monthly payment amount of $$ 212$. If this borrower had total eligible student loan debt of $$ 20,000$ when the loans initially entered repayment, and this amount had not changed when the borrower requested IBR, the calculated monthly repayment amount under a 10-year standard plan with an interest rate of 6.8 percent would be based on $$ 20,000$. Using an interest rate of $6.8 \%$, the 10 -year standard payment amount for $$ 20,000$ would be $$ 230$. Since the $$ 212$ IBR calculated amount is less than the 10 -year plan amount of $$ 230$, the borrower would be eligible to repay under IBR at a monthly amount of $$ 212$. But, if this borrower's total eligible loan debt used to calculate the 10 -year standard amount was only $$ 15,000$, the 10 -year calculated amount would be $$ 173$ per month, which is less than the IBR amount of $$ 212$. This borrower would not be eligible for IBR.
