Support Staff Performance Evaluation

The College believes in regularly scheduled performance evaluations. Evaluations assist staff members with their professional development, and serve as a reference for promotion, transfer, and retention by facilitating development, communication and understanding of expectations and performance requirements.

It is the supervisor's responsibility to monitor staff performance, discuss significant accomplishments and provide performance coaching and counseling on an ongoing basis. At a minimum, an employee's performance is evaluated at the end of the introductory period and annually during the designated evaluation period. The performance evaluation process cannot be used to discuss performance concerns that have not been addressed at or near the time of occurrence and may not be used as disciplinary action.

Lewis & Clark College has designed a performance evaluation process that supports collaboration between the supervisor and the employee. The process includes a core set of requirements with a variety of optional methods for completion.

- 1) The Office of Human Resources will initiate the evaluation process through an email notification to the supervisor with a link to the necessary forms. The evaluation form includes the means for collecting performance feedback from co-workers, an objectives/plan of action section, and a performance ranking section. Please type the comments directly into the electronic version of the form and print it when finished. The forms are located at <http://www.lclark.edu/dept/hr/forms.html>

- 2) Prior to initiating the evaluation process, both the employee and the supervisor must carefully review the existing position description. Employees need to be evaluated based on the responsibilities listed in the position description and the supervisor's expectations. If the position description is no longer accurate, the supervisor and the employee must update the description and submit it to the Office of Human Resources. If the changes are substantial, the position will be considered for reclassification, as specified in the LCCSSA bargaining agreement. The reclassification process is independent of the evaluation process and need not delay the performance evaluation.

- 3) The supervisor and the employee have flexibility and options. The key is to collaborate and mutually determine which process works best for you.

A) Feedback Section

The supervisor and/or the employee may request feedback from faculty and staff members who work closely with the employee. The employee will have the right to review the written feedback after the name of the author has been removed.

Individuals can offer feedback using one or a combination of the following:

- 1) Complete the Annual Performance Review Questionnaire.
- 2) Submit a written narrative describing their interactions with and assessment of the employee.
- 3) Provide an oral report to the supervisor.

B) Professional Development

- 1) The supervisor and the employee may separately draft the information for the professional development form, or
- 2) The supervisor and the employee may use the evaluation meeting to jointly complete the sections.

The performance evaluation part of the process is evaluative and retrospective. The forward thinking and planning aspect of determining goals, expectations, a plan of action and necessary resources is extremely important .

C) Support Staff Evaluation Form

- 1) The supervisor may complete the ranking section independent of input from the employee and set a private meeting to discuss the evaluation with the employee, or
- 2) The supervisor and the employee may both complete the ranking section independently and set a private meeting to discuss the ranking section and complete one evaluation to be maintained in the formal employee record. If the supervisor and the employee are unable to reach agreement on the performance ranking of any category, the supervisor's ranking will prevail.

In both of the above scenarios it is recommended that the employee be given a copy of the supervisor's ratings 2-3 days prior to the evaluation meeting in order to prepare responses.

Supervisors have some flexibility. They may add categories to the evaluation, mark a rating between two categories and/or supplement the form with a narrative description. Make it work for your individual situation. Some supervisors create a simple form listing major responsibilities or expectations on one side and how well the employee performed them on the other.

Once completed and discussed, the employee and the first and second level supervisor sign the forms. Employees must also sign the accompanying document pertaining to the College's Code of Ethics, and attach it to the evaluation. Send the signed form to Human Resources for inclusion in the employee's personnel file. The employee's signature indicates that the evaluation has been discussed. The signature does not necessarily indicate agreement. The employee may request that his/her own written comments be attached to the performance evaluation and included in his/her personnel file.

Professional Development

To promote personal growth in the work environment the employee and supervisor, either separately or together, develop goals, objectives and a plan of action to discuss at the meeting. Consider both employee interests and departmental needs. Ideally, the goals should be mutually determined but the supervisor may require the employee to meet certain goals, expectations or objectives. This form should include specifics with timelines or deadlines for each item. Employees, consider discussing what you would like to learn to become a better LC employee and your long-term professional goals. See the tip sheet for more information about setting goals.

Goals/Objectives/Plan of Action

Part 1 Goals and Objectives:

Evaluation Summary

Mark an "X" next to the description that most closely approximates the employee's total impact on the College. Do not average; rather consider the overall contribution.

() Exceeds Most Expectations - Performance ratings at this level are reserved for exceptional employees who routinely exceed performance expectations with only rare deficiencies. Employees at this level demonstrate an in-depth knowledge of their work. They are sought out for answers and advice. Recognition of their expertise goes beyond their own unit or department. They require little or no supervision or follow-up.

() Meets Most Expectations - Performance ratings at this level are reserved for employees who consistently meet performance expectations. This is a "good" overall rating reflecting fully competent performance. Performance may exceed expectations periodically or in a few areas, and performance may not meet expectations occasionally or in a few areas. Errors are few and seldom repeated. New skills or duties are performed in a reasonable time after introduction. Minimal supervision and follow-up is required.

() Below Most Expectations - Performance ratings at this level are reserved for employees who do not consistently meet most performance expectations. This is equivalent to a rating of "below average and needing improvement." Performance may meet expectations periodically or in a some areas, but improvement is required in one or more areas. Employee often requires direct supervision and follow-up.

() Requires Significant Improvement - Performance ratings at this level are reserved for employees who need to improve or develop to continue their employment. While some key responsibilities are performed competently, others are clearly below expectations. Employees at this level need coaching, frequent supervision and follow-up.
