

Assistant Professor, Ethnomusicology

Lewis & Clark College, a private liberal arts college with 2,000 undergraduates, invites applications for a tenure-track assistant professorship of Ethnomusicology in the Department of Music, to begin Fall 2016. Ph.D. in Ethnomusicology is required at the time of appointment as a tenure-track member of the faculty. Potential for excellent teaching and research at an undergraduate liberal arts institution is essential. A successful candidate will demonstrate depth in their research portfolio and plans, with preferred research fields including the music of Asia, Latin America, and/or Africa, as well as breadth and versatility in the classroom. Usual teaching load is five courses per academic year and may include introductory courses for majors and nonmajors in the music of Asia, Latin America, and Africa; upper-level seminars for music majors; ethnomusicological research methods; and participation in the Department of Music's music theory program and/or the College's general education program. Responsibilities will also include coordination of vibrant world music performance faculty and courses. The College is committed to preparing students for leadership in an increasingly interdependent world, and affirms the educational benefits of diversity.

(See <http://www.lclark.edu/dept/about/diversity.html>) A complete application must include: (1) cover letter of application which includes statements of research interests and teaching experience, as well as a description of how the applicant's teaching and/or work in the campus community will contribute to a culture of inclusion and campus diversity; (2) curriculum vitae; (3) statement of teaching philosophy; (4) evidence of teaching effectiveness; (5) sample of scholarship; (6) graduate transcripts; (7) three letters of recommendation (uploaded separately by the referees). All materials should be addressed to Chair, Ethnomusicology Search Committee, and must be submitted via Interfolio at <http://apply.interfolio.com/31133>. Click "Apply" to create your free account. Review of applications will begin on October 15, 2015 and continue until the position has been filled. . Lewis & Clark College, located in Portland, OR, will conduct background checks on the finalist(s). Lewis & Clark College is an equal opportunity employer.
